

F2T 101

FITNESS PRINCIPLES AND PRACTICE PEER FITNESS TRAINER CERTIFICATE

Designed using the latest research on fire fighter wellness and fitness, exercise science and behavioral change, this introductory F2T course emphasizes ASSESSMENT, DESIGN, and IMPLEMENTATION and LEADERSHIP. It is taught by industry leaders using a combination of teaching styles, interactive small and large group activities, case studies and hands-on exercise sessions.

ASSESSMENT

F2T 101 will provide students with tactics and strategies to better understand the demands (needs and wants) and capacity of their peers so they can establish a target and direction for training. Communication skills will also be emphasized.

DESIGN

F2T 101 will provide students with an opportunity to critically evaluate and design exercise sessions that suit a number of short- and long-term objectives. Principles will be discussed to guide the selection of exercises and fitness parameters.

IMPLEMENTATION

Building on the design process, F2T 101 highlights factors that influence the choices, actions and behaviors of fire fighters to assist with program delivery. Opportunities will be provided to coach and give/receive feedback in small and large group settings.

LEADERSHIP

The successful implementation of any wellness and/or fitness program requires influential leadership. F2T 101 will provide students with several strategies to engage, inform, empower, and challenge all stakeholders within their organization.

WHAT WILL I LEARN?

F2T 101 introduces an integrated approach to the physical preparation of fire fighters for WORK, LIFE and PLAY. The central tenet of this approach is that every fire fighter, regardless of age, experience, fitness or job status, needs the CAPACITY to meet the DEMANDS of their life. The framework and principles taught will help students establish exercise recommendations for peers with diverse needs and interests.

F2T 101 CURRICULUM

Each Module includes a practical experience that serves to reinforce the concepts taught

- M01: Program Framework
- M02: Movement Fundamentals
- M03: Coaching and Feedback
- M04: The F.I.T.T. Principle
- M05: Program Design Principles
- M06: Assessing Demands (Communication)
- M07: Assessing Physical Capacity

F2T PFT CERTIFICATE

In launching the Peer Fitness Trainer (PFT) Certificate in 2002, the IAFF made a commitment to improving the health, performance and quality of life of all uniformed personnel. Since that time, more than 10,000 members have become ambassadors for fire fighter wellness and fitness. The F2T program will advance this mission by maintaining oversight of the PFT Certificate and expanding access to education, training, support, and mentorship.

WHY THE PFT CERTIFICATE

Throughout the United States and Canada, the PFT Certificate identifies fire fighters who have demonstrated the knowledge and skills to design and implement exercise programs and improve the wellness and fitness of their peers. It differs from other Personal Training credentials because of the unique physical, psychological and social aspects of firefighting. Training is also provided FOR FIRE FIGHTERS, BY FIRE FIGHTERS.

HOW TO BECOME A PFT

Any fire fighter-EMS provider employed by a fire department can become a PFT by successfully completing the IAFF's introductory Fitness Principles and Practice course (F2T 101). Delivered in person over 4 days or online over 6 weeks this course details the principles to make exercise matter for fire fighters in work, life and play. Students must achieve >70% on an online exam to receive their PFT Certificate.

MAINTAINING YOUR PFT CERTIFICATE

Your PFT Certificate is valid for two years. To maintain your Certificate, you must complete 1 F2T Challenge (contribution to the firefighting community) and earn 8 continuing education credits (CECs) in every two-year reporting period. At least 50% of your CECs must come from F2T education. All PFTs certified by F2T within a particular year will have the same reporting/ renewal period regardless of their original Certificate date.
